[Numb. 869.]

THE South-Carolina Gazette.

From Monday December 31st, to Monday January 7th, 1751.

...a criminal debtor but one way, which is by fraud and obstinacy (...only for which scarce one example is to be found in a hundred) how can it stand with any charity or convenience, to neglect and pass by many circumstances, and to fall upon the debtor with such cruelty, by laying such a heap of miseries upon him, his wife, children, and reputation at once, as imprisonment bringeth?

It is true that the ancient common laws of England, are very strict in this point of maintaining pacts and contracts; but the contracts of those times were simple, honest, and legal, and the recovery was against the estate only; for there were no penal bonds known, nor usury practised by christians when these laws were made; but all our contracts and bonds, or the greatest part, are corrupted with usury and forfeitures, which are extortion in a high degree: And to force men to perform such, with the loss of their estate, credit, liberty, and many times of life too, is most inequitable.

Especially, seeing the law provides every creditor his full damage, without help of a penal bond, which sheweth that all forfeitures are needless, and they are unjust also ... he shall be surer judge of his own damage, which of right belongeth to the Judgment of the law.

But it will be said, that the chancery doth relieve against the rigor of the law in usuries for forfeitures ... and judgments may be reversed by attaint, errors, &c.

The answer is, that the remedy is worse than the disease; for all courses of relief by law in chancery, are hard, tedious, uncertain, long, and extreme chargeable; and it is a lamentable case, that when the debtor is unjustly or unconscionably cast in the law, stripped of his estate, his body imprisoned, his liberty tied up, his credit destroyed, his friends banished; then to send him so disabled, to seek remedy by new suits in chancery, which are chargeable above measure: And with the same extremity, doth the statute of bankrupts deal with the poor debtor, as heretofore hath been declared.

That prisoners are compassed with a multitude of ineffable miseries and heavy afflictions, and therefore some cannot choose to become weak in faith, staggered or desperate when there is no man to speak a word of comfort in due season, appeareth by the miserable ends of many desperate persons, whereby one with shame and distemper loseth his sense and dies; another, for want and poverty, perished; one, with fear and grief, breaks his heart outright; another's heart that cannot break, the Devil is ready to teach him desperately how to make away; one uncharitably flies from his keeper; another desperates, adventures his life to break ... and finally, many are carried and given to all vices. For faith is rightly compared to a lamp, which must have oyl continually to maintain its light, or otherwise is soon extinguished. So doth God's word maintain faith by continual preaching, whereof prisoners are destitute for most part.

Objection. Some men will excuse the unconscionableness of the law, alledging that in taking the debtor's body and goods, and giving way to usuries, forfeitures and corrupt bargains, the law doth no more than the debtor himself hath contracted under his hand and seal; And, volenti non fit injuria. Whereunto is answered,

1. That the guilt of the law cannot be so washed off, for in debts where there is no contract under the debtor's hand and seal, the law gives the debtor's goods and his body into prison, at the creditor's will.

2. That the debtor is not voluntas, for it is against every debtor's will to pay usury or forfeiture; but he is pressed thereto, by his own necessity on the one side, and the creditor's uncharitable will on the other, who will not lend but for usury and forfeiture.

3. The common saying, Volenti non fit injuria, is a false position, else is it lawful to kill a man that is willing to die, which is absurd; for the will or consent of the party to an act that is in itself unjust, cannot make the act just, nor justify the actor.

DUKE of CUMBERLAND,

Capt. GIDDINGS,

NOW lying at Mr. Wright's Wharff, and will ſail with all poſſible Expedition: For Freight agree with AUSTIN & LAURENS.

Dec. 20th, 1750.

To be Sold, on Friday the 18th Day of January next, at the plantation of Kenneth Michie, deceaſed, which formerly belonged to William Dry, Eſq; on Charles-Town neck, and but ſeven miles from Charles-Town; the ſaid plantation containing about 864 acres of land, on which are a good dwelling-houſe and ſeveral other convenient buildings, a good orchard ſtocked with the beſt variety of apple, pear, and other young bearing fruit trees, and a very good garden.

There is a large and bold creek leading up from Cooper-River (which runs juſt by the ſaid plantation) to the landing, where the largeſt pettiagua, ſchooner or ſloop may, with the greateſt eaſe and ſafety, lye cloſe to the bluff.

A-croſs the ſaid creek, through the marſh, which belongs partly to James Wright, Eſq; and partly to the eſtate of the ſaid Kenneth Michie, was made ſome years ago, a large and ſubſtantial dam to keep out the tide, and which, with the neceſſary care and proper management and diligence uſed, has had the deſired effect, namely, to ſweeten and freſhen the ſalt (or the greateſt part thereof rather brackiſh) marſh, for the planting rice: And altho' there is yet a great quantity of that ſort of land adjoining unattempted, and which is not to be doubted may, and with very little trouble and expence, will become good rice land, yet there is from 80 to 100 acres (beſides ſeveral acres of valuable ſwamp) which will be fit to be planted next ſpring, ſome acres whereof two years ago were, by way of experiment planted with, and produced as good rice, as any made that year in this province; and being made on that part which was ſituated neareſt the ſalts, is a ſufficient and demonſtrative proof, that that land, eſpecially with the further and additional advantage which it will have had by next ſpring, of three years more freſhening, may with the greateſt certainty be then ſtocked with the ſtaple of rice. The high land belonging to the ſaid plantation, is very fit for corn, indigo and potatoes, and the [illegible] Inferior, 'tis imagined, to very few plantations in [illegible].

There will be ſold, at the ſame time, a choice [illegible] ſtock of cattle, horſes, ſheep and hogs, a quantity of [illegible] and potatoes, and plantation tools.

N.B. The ſale will begin by 11 o'clock in the [illegible] the conditions thereof will be publiſhed.

DOCTOR THOMAS CHAMLERS from England, offers a charitable cure to any poor people in this province that are unable to anſwer a phyſician's charge; and he recommends it a good prevention of the diſeaſes that are moſt common here, to boil the water with a little ſnake root in it before they drink it. He may be ſpoke with at any time, at Mrs. Truſler's on the Bay.

BROUGHT to the WORK-HOUSE.

Cato, a run-away negro man, who ſpeaks bad Engliſh, but ſays he belongs to Mr. Gideon at George-Town.

A run-away negro fellow, belonging to Mr. Leſſene

And another run away, belonging to Mr. Elias Ball

A Black Horſe upwards of 13 Hands high, a ſtar in his forehead, a ſmall white ſpot on each ſide of his back, no brand to be perceived, a ſwitch tail. The owner muſt prove his property before Nathaniel Broughton.

To be Sold by Samuel Maverick on James-Iſland, a veſſel lately launched, intended for a brigantine, burthen 116 or 118 tons, with a deep waſte.

A very handy, likely, healthy boy, uſed to the houſe, and a likely, ſtrong, young wench, to be ſold. Any perſon wanting ſuch may be informed who has them, upon enquiring of the printer.
